

The Betty Letters

My Dear Grandchild,

For the first time, I, really, cannot agree with Beijing! I am loyal to the Motherland, make no mistake, but the latest Beijing Directive – Abstain from Premarital Sex – is stupid in the extreme. Let me tell you some of the things that this Directive states:

- 1. In modern times, nobody would deny that sexual attraction between men and women is natural and that sex can be a very important part of a relationship. In fact, sex is the physiological basis of erotic love, and a natural expression of love to a certain degree. However, sex is also a violent force, which may lead to dire consequences if it runs out of control;*
- 2. From a medical point of view, premarital intercourse is not good for youngsters, for they don't have the capacity to sustain its impact either physiologically or psychologically. Premarital intercourse can create many problems that have a negative effect on sexual feeling and marital sexual life;*
- 3. The reality is inescapable: Premarital sex is winning more and more consent. A few decades ago, a premaritally pregnant woman would be condemned by public opinion. She might even be forced to take her own life. Nowadays, it is not uncommon to see a bride well advanced in pregnancy at her wedding. Is this progress or regress? No one knows for sure; and,*
- 4. The question is whether or not premarital sex is a manifestation of social progress; or, a price that we have to pay for social progress?*

Such dribble!

Point Number One: 'In modern times!' Nay, since the world began, men have been attracted to women – for sexual reasons, primarily. It has, always, been 'natural'. What is unnatural about it? It is, and will, always, be the initial basis of a relationship between the sexes. Sex is a violent force, to be sure, but what a wonderful violence it is! And, lastly, sex cannot run out of control – because healthy males and females will never be able to get enough of it.

Point Number Two: For what reason is premarital intercourse not good for youngsters? I am not certain what Beijing means by the term, 'youngsters', but if Beijing is referring to teenagers, I can assure the powers-that-be in Beijing that they like it just as much as mature adults do. And I can assure Beijing, also, that teenagers 'have the capacity to sustain its impact (meaning sexual intercourse)' even better than mature adults. In addition, teenagers have a much stronger ability and longer staying power, too.

Point Number Three: Is Beijing suggesting that, if a young girl gets pregnant, she should consider killing herself? Progress? Regress? I know for sure: If my daughter gets pregnant and she is not married, I shall stand by her and help her in her hour of need. I shall never allow her to be condemned by public opinion. Even the Vice President of the United States, Mr Richard B. Cheney, has admitted, openly, that one of his mature daughters is a lesbian. He, being an intelligent parent, does not condemn his daughter for her sexual preference. We are not living in the 17th Century America where, when a woman gets pregnant out of wedlock, she has to wear a scarlet letter so that the world may look upon her sins of the flesh.

Point Number Four: Premarital sex is neither a manifestation of social progress nor the price that we have to pay for social progress. It is, simply put, humping, screwing, fornication, fucking, if you will. And sex is wonderful! And it will, always, be so.

While I maintain loyalty to my country, I cannot condone such utter rubbish, spewed out by pseudo-intellectuals of the Chinese Communist Party, who are desirous of making points with the elderly males of Government, whose testosterone levels are such that they cannot get it up. Had it not been for my appetite for sexual intercourse in days of yore, I would never have been able conceive and to have my family; and, Grandpa would not be in his present position. Sometimes, even Beijing goes too far.

And, now, I am in the mood to do that which comes naturally.

Love you, all.

The Chief Lady of Hongkong
